ChildShield

Protection for your children in the moments that matter

For many children, activities such as football, rugby, gymnastics, or even martial arts are the things they look forward to the most. But simply going to a playground at the weekend can mean they're at higher risk of injury.

Because the disruption and hidden costs from injuries such as broken bones can place strain on family finances, it can be a worry for parents.

For as little as £6 per month

ChildShield can provide financial protection for parents if their children suffer broken bones or need to spend time in hospital.

Children are also covered for several serious conditions – including cancer and bacterial meningitis – and ChildShield can provide a lump-sum to help keep family life on track.

*Hospitalisation for illness, self-inflicted injuries, and pregnancy-related complications are covered once the policy has been held for 12-months.

And because it's standalone cover, you don't need to take out a policy of your own first, and it can sit alongside other insurance you might have too.
